

Wireless number portability is a feature which would be truly useful. I have been debating switching cellular providers due to the poor service from my current provider, but, due to the hassles involved with getting a new number I have been hesitant to do so.

Portability would encourage competition and provide enhanced convenience.